Membership Renewal and Education

Last month I discussed the impact of the ethics certification on your membership renewal application. This month, I'd like to cover the other certification on required CPE for renewing CGFM's. The AGA mission statement, shown below, focuses heavily on the objectives of education and professional development.

"AGA serves professionals in the government financial management community by providing quality education, fostering professional development and certification and supporting standards and research to advance government accountability."

Education, then, is both a primary goal of AGA and one of the primary benefits. The importance of CGFMs maintaining proficiency in government financial management is the reason for a certification on the membership renewal application for minimum CPE credits. However, I think it is important for all AGA members to maintain a high level of professional proficiency, as called for in the ethical standard on professional competence and performance. Continuing professional education is one way of accomplishing this.

National AGA offers many educational activities for members through the AGA Academy: the Professional Development Conference (with 30 CPE credits), the Federal Leadership Conference (8 CPE credits), and the State and Local Leadership Conference (8 CPEs). The Academy offers online and classroom courses, as well as access to chapter conferences and workshops. In addition, there are publications like the quarterly Journal of Government Financial Management and the newsletter Government Financial Management Topics.

Lifeblood of the Chapter

Education is certainly the lifeblood of the Washington Chapter-it is our primary benefit for members, main source of revenue, largest expense, largest participation activity, and a key focus of this newsletter. Two of the hardest jobs in the chapter belong to the Monthly Programs Director, who is responsible for luncheon speakers and CPE sessions, and the Education Director, who is responsible for educational events. But it is the revenue from our conferences and seminars that pays for most other Chapter activities, including awards, luncheon subsidies, contributions to charities, newsletter, officers' salaries, and cars (joke! joke!). And the main purpose of Chapter activities is to provide you with knowledge that will enhance your professional skills.

Each month, we feature noted speakers on financial management issues at our monthly luncheons, CPE sessions on specific topics (such as capital asset planning, CGFM training, and GAO Yellow Book issues), and three themed conferences (financial statements and reporting, GPRA/performance measurement, and financial systems). In addition, each month the newsletter features a page called "Inside the Black Box", which explains accounting procedures for standard general ledger entries, and one or more announcements of upcoming educational events. Between National AGA and the Washington DC Chapter, you could earn up to 95 CPE credits per year!

more like an infomercial!). I'm making an appeal to you to support our next two conferences because doing so will benefit both you and the Chapter. We're not offering rippled abs, toned bods or two-day mini-vacations, just plenty of good ol' cerebral "stuff". On April 11, we are presenting "Performance Measurement: Going Beyond Compliance". This one-day conference, co-sponsored by NASA and Grant Thornton, will look at the benefits and lessons learned from implementing GPRA and will feature speakers Joe Kull (OMB), Barry White (Council for Excellence in Government), Ron Longo (KPMG), and others. It will be held at the Capitol Hilton, 16th and K Streets NW.

On May 22-23, we are presenting "Financial Systems in Transition: Improving the Chances for Success". This two-day conference is co-sponsored by USAID and PricewaterhouseCoopers and will be held at the Holiday Inn on the Hill, 4th St. and New Jersey Ave NW. It will focus on strategic planning for systems, the Government Paperwork Elimination Act, JFMIP initiatives, best practices in data conversion, security, HR systems, and lessons learned in financial systems implementation. This is a popular conference every year and usually sells out. For complete information on the April conference see page 7. Detailed information on the May event will be published in the May issue of this newsletter.

At the national level, the March 2001 issue of Topics contains the program for AGA's 2001 PDC, to be held in Boston on July 2-6. The conference theme is "Managing Change in the 21st Century," and the program is filled with dynamic sessions to help all financial mangers prepare for the challenges of working in a rapidly changing government environment. There are also many historical, and educational, things to do and see in Boston which makes this a "must-do" event for the whole family. Hope to see you there!

"Ellie Clark was a trailblazer," he said. "She opened doors for women in our Association and our profession. She will be sorely missed by all of her AGA friends and colleagues."

In 1999, Clark was awarded the Association's highest honor, The Robert W. King Memorial Award, recognizing her many years of service to AGA. Clark was the wife of the late John Zych. Inside the Black Box: Correcting Imbalances

by Simcha Kuritzky, CGFM, CPA

sually I write about what ought to be posted, but this time I've decided to broach the subject what needs to be posted to correct a situation inadvertently created when the financial statements were adjusted. This is not to advocate adjusting statements in such a way that it causes imbalances, just acknowledging that, in the heat of audit, such entries are sometimes made, and then the agency has to correct the problem.

The Situation

During their financial statements audit, an agency discovers they have no support for an accrual that had been made in a previous year. When the auditors say the liability is invalid, the agency transfers the beginning balance payable to 3310 Cumulative Results of Operations, and restate their beginning balance on the Statement of Changes in Net Position.

The next year, the agency discovers that this entry caused an imbalance in their payables between proprietary and budgetary accounts, since 4901 Expended Authority - Unpaid still has a balance but the 2000 series does not. The adjustment was made in an unexpired appropriated fund, and since the accrual was in error, the funding should be available. How do you correct this in the new year?

The Solution

The first step is to correct the budget. We know that 4901 is overstated and available authority is understated, so the first correcting entry is:

dr. 4971 Downward Adj. of Prior-Year Unpaid Expended Authority

cr. 4450 Unapportioned Authority

This will increase the available amount and also recoveries on the Statement of Budgetary Resources, so that statement will remain in balance. To restore equity, the reduction in expenditures has to be recognized in the proprietary accounts with:

dr. 5700 Expended Appropriations Usedcr. 3100 Unexpended Appropriations

On the Statement of Changes in Net Position, this entry will decrease appropriations used but show as an increase in unexpended appropriations, so there will be no effect on net position. When account 5700 is closed, it will back the balance of this former accrual out of 3310 Cumulative Results of Operations. So far, so good.

The problem is that the Statement of Financing is out of balance, since the adjustment (account 4971) shows up on line 1B4 Recoveries, but there is no change to Net Cost. To offset this, 7400 Prior-Period Adjustments must be credited (which shows up on line 2G Other Resources that do not Fund Net Cost of Operations). But what is the debit? Account 7400 will close to 3310 and also shows up on the Statement of Changes in Net Position, so some other account that does the same has to be the offset, but we don't want to post a revenue or expense, because it is not a valid charge to this years Net Cost, and it would also throw the Statement of Financing back out of balance.

If we had taken all this into account the year the liability was reversed, we would have posted:

dr. 4971 Downward Adjustments of Prior-Year Unpaid Expended Authority

5700 Expended Appropriations Used 2990 Other Liabilities

cr. 4450 Unapportioned Authority

3100 Unexpended Appropriations

7400 Prior-Period Adjustments

This is similar to what we need to post now, except that the balance is no longer in account 2990. It was moved to 3310 and an adjustment was made to beginning cumulative results on the Statement of Changes in Net Position. In order to rectify the situation, either 3310 has to be debited and Statement of Changes in Net Position adjusted this year as well (in the opposite direction from last year), or 7400 Prior-Period Adjustments (PPA) has to be debited.

You might well wonder how we can both debit and credit 7400. Not all entries to 7400 are reported on the Statement of Financing; only those which are associated with expenditures or capital assets. Therefore, the credit to 7400 will be reported, but the debit won't be. Obviously, a subaccount will have to be used to keep them separate. So the agency could debit 7400P Proprietary-Only PPA and credit 7400B PPA that Affect Budgets. Since both would be reported on the Statement of Changes in Net Position, that statement would be in balance, and since only 7400B would be reported on the Statement of Financing, that statement would also be in balance.

Performance Measurement GPRA: Going Beyond Compliance April 11, 2001

Agencies now have two years' experience in measuring and reporting performance under GPRA. Valuable lessons have been learned – what works well and what doesn't. The recently enacted Reports Consolidation Act of 2000 could have a substantial impact on agencies' reporting processes.

This training seminar will focus on the benefits of performance measurement, spotlighting agencies that have successfully incorporated performance measurement into their organizational management. Emphasis will be on the utility of performance data for both program management and day-to-day operations.
