Another Ending—and Another New Beginning

May marked the end of our program year and the end of my term as president of your chapter. Last September, at the start of this 2000-2001 program year, I welcomed you to a new beginning for the Washington DC Chapter. It is now time for another new beginning with Janet McBride at the helm. Janet and the officers and directors that will serve with her provide another opportunity to do the same thing again but hopefully better and with a fresh outlook—new people, new ideas, new energies. This is an excellent group of people who are eager to carry the flame for the next year.

As I step down, I want to thank all of you for the opportunity to serve the Chapter and for your unwavering support. Many of you contacted me to express your pleasure, or displeasure, with the way the Chapter was going. I hope you feel you were well served and that your issues were addressed. I also want to thank those Chapter members who worked with me during the year as officers, directors and advisors—they did all the hard work and certainly deserve your thanks. It takes a lot of people to run the many activities of the Washington DC Chapter and you must remember that they are you! They have jobs, families, home responsibilities, social activities, etc., but they still find time to serve you, the members of AGA, and run the chapter. Sure there are glitches, but they do an amazing amount of work—luncheons and speakers happen, conferences are put on, a newsletter is published, community outreach activities are accomplished, our receipts are deposited and bills paid, sponsors are lined up, awards are presented, many meetings are held, and so much more. On behalf of the entire Washington DC Chapter:

Thank You

Have a safe and happy summer. I hope to see you at the PDC in Boston!

to be elected National President of AGA, and the second recipient of the Chapter's Einhorn/Gary Award.

President Noble acknowledged and thanked the members of the 2000-2001 Awards Committee for the time and effort spent in the process of selecting this year's chapter award recipients, and the Chapter's Nominees for AGA National Awards. Douglas M. Gandy, Farm Credit Administration, Committee Chair and Director of Awards; William J. Anderson, Jr., CGFM, General Accounting Office, Immediate Past President; Evelyn A. Brown, CGFM, National Archives Trust Fund Board, Section IV Representative and Past President; Janet A. McBride, CGFM, Joint Financial Management Improvement Program, President-Elect; S. Sue Lazich, Software Performance Systems, Inc., Assistant Chapter Treasurer, and Joseph J. Donlon, CGFM, Andersen, Past Capital Region Vice President and Chapter President.

President Noble, prior to presenting the awards, made the following remarks. Each spring, the Washington, D.C. Chapter of AGA honors and recognizes those individuals who have made significant contributions and service toward improving government financial management. Through hard work and outstanding dedication, this year's chapter award recipients have made significant contributions toward advancing government accountability. Their vision, leadership, and service have contributed greatly to the government financial community through significant financial management improvement accomplishments. Congratulations to our 2001 Chapter award recipients.

DISTINGUISHED LEADERSHIP AWARD

GENE L. DODARO, CGFM, Chief Operating Officer U.S. General Accounting Office

The award was presented by Chapter member, David M. Walker, Comptroller General of the United States and President Mike Noble.

For his sustained distinguished leadership and dedication to excellence in government, extraordinary personal integrity and professionalism, and exceptional commitment to public service Gene Dodaro was recognized for his extraordinary record of accomplishments as a leader, manager, and highly creative thinker. Gene is widely respected for his work with federal agencies and with the Congress and his contributions to improved government performance, his leadership abilities in government and within the profession, and his personal integrity. As the Chief Operating Officer of GAO, he has led GAO's operational efforts to formulate GAO's strategic & tactical plans for the 21st century. He is responsible for day-to-day management to ensure that GAO effectively accomplishes its mission. Gene is also this year's recipient of the AGA National Frank Greathouse Distinguished Leadership Award.

DISTINGUISHED SERVICE TO THE FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT COMMUNITY AWARD

FRANK W. SULLIVAN, CGFM, Vice President for Program Development, AOC Solutions, Inc.

For his sustained outstanding contributions in advancing government accountability during his twenty-four years of government service.

Frank Sullivan, was the Deputy Assistant Secretary for Finance and the Deputy Chief Financial Officer for the Department of Veterans Affairs. He managed a $61 million budget with responsibility for department-wide financial operations, financial systems, financial policy, reporting and VA's Franchise Funds. Through his leadership, VA achieved its first unqualified opinion on its FY 1999 financial statements and successfully implemented VA's first Electronic Commerce Strategic Plan.

ACHIEVEMENT OF THE YEAR AWARD

LAWRENCE W. ROGERS, Acting Chief Financial Officer, Internal Revenue Service

The award was presented by Commissioner Rossotti and President Noble.

For his outstanding efforts in improving results of IRS' financial audits and enhancing the agency's planning and financial management program. As the Acting CFO of IRS, Larry Rogers played a key leadership role in strengthening IRS' financial reporting and controls. He also contributed to laying the groundwork for sustainable improvement in several critical areas and taking action to address several management issues. Under Mr. Rogers strong leadership and tremendous commitment, IRS produced, in FY 2000, combined financial statements encompassing both its tax custodial and administrative activities that achieved, for the first time, the milestone of receiving an unqualified audit opinion on all financial statements from GAO.

EDUCATION AND TRAINING AWARD

FASAB Staff

For exceptional contributions to the development, delivery and promotion of Federal Generally Accepted Accounting Principles education and training programs that benefited the financial management community

Part of FASAB's mission is to provide education and training to parties affected by its actions. In support of this effort, the staff has developed, delivered and facilitated hundreds of presentations, workshops and panels to increase preparers' and users' knowledge of FASAB processes and products. As a result of formal recognition as the jurisdiction to establish GAAP for Federal entities, FASAB expanded its educational efforts to reach a broader audience and to more fully educate both the federal and non-federal communities on the nature of FASAB and its concepts, standards, and issues.

EINHORN/GARY AWARD

This award was established in 1998, to honor the financial management excellence and AGA achievements inspired by Ray Einhorn and Jack Gary. Ray and Jack are AGA charter members, Past Washington DC Chapter Presidents, Past AGA National Presidents, and Certified Government Financial Managers. The chapter bestows the Einhorn/Gary Award on a Washington DC Chapter member who has provided, over a sustained period of time, superior service that enhanced the Washington DC Chapter and the Association's prestige and stature in the financial management community.

Presentation of the Einhorn/Gary

Award by Presidents:

- Raymond Einhorn, CGFM, 1957-1958
- T. Jack Gary, Jr., CGFM, 1952-1953
- Mike Noble, CGFM, 2000-2001

Presented to:

WILLIAM J. ANDERSON, JR., CGFM, Manager of Professional Development Financial Management and Assurance, U. S. General Accounting Office

For his dedication and outstanding service at the chapter and national levels that have significantly enhanced AGA's prestige and stature in the financial management community

Bill has dedicated himself to excellence in government financial management and to the advancement of his profession. Bill has served AGA in numerous leadership positions including, Senior Vice President At-Large on the National Executive Committee, Capital Region Vice President, Chaired the 50th Anniversary Gala and the Bylaws and Procedures Committee, was actively involved in the CGFM program, and coined AGA's byline "Advancing Government Accountability" as the theme for the 1998 PDC. Bill has served this Chapter as President, CGFM Coordinator, as a Director, and as Chair, Vice-Chair or a member of several Committees.

Bill's dedication and achievements at the chapter and national levels have substantially enhanced the Association's prestige and stature in the financial management community, and epitomize the standards the Einhorn/Gary Award embodies. Bill is AGA's National President-Elect Designate.

JAMES W. SAYLOR AWARD

ROBERT L. BUCHANAN, JR., CGFM, Division Manager Anteon Corporation

For his outstanding service to the Washington DC Chapter.

Bob has served the Chapter as the Director for Publications/ Newsletter & Membership. These two extremely demanding positions require considerable time and collaborative working relationships to be successful. Bob served as Director of Publications and Editor of The Washington Connection from 1993-2000. During that seven-year period the newsletter's content and coverage was greatly increased and the Chapter was the recipient of numerous newsletter awards. This year Bob assumed the responsibilities of Director of Membership. He has also coordinated all the Chapter's publications, served on the Community Service Committee, and provided a measure of continuity on the Chapter's Executive Committee. Bob has brought prestige to the Chapter and AGA through his numerous activities.

PRESIDENT'S AWARDS

Recognized the following individuals who have made outstanding contributions to the success of the Chapter's programs.

Karl L. Boettcher, CGFM, U.S. Department of the Treasury, FMS, for his outstanding contributions and efforts as the Chapter Chair of Partnership Liaison for 2000-2001.

Chad Davis, EDS E Strategy, for his outstanding contributions and efforts as the Chapter Treasurer for 2000-2001.

David A. Fitz, CGFM, KPMG Consulting LLC, for his outstanding contributions and efforts as the Chapter Webmaster for 2000-2001.

Kathryn Healy, Urbach Kahn & Werlin Advisors, Inc., for her outstanding contributions and efforts as the Chapter Director of Community Service for 1999-2001.

Margaret L. "Lucy" Lomax, CGFM, Federal Accounting Standards Advisory Board, for her outstanding contributions and efforts as the Chapter Director of Budget and Finance for 1999-2001.

Jolene Romanyshyn, CGFM, General Services Administration, for her outstanding contributions and efforts in support of the Chapter as Director of Agency Liaison from 1998-2001.

Inside the Black Box: Charts of Accounts from Around the World

by Simcha Kuritzky, CGFM, CPA

For the past decade, there has been a concerted effort by accountants around the world to formulate more meaningful government financial statements. Here in the U.S., the federal accounting community has placed a great deal of emphasis on creating a Standard General Ledger (SGL) that can easily be used to produce statements. But how did other countries structure their charts of accounts? Certainly their intended audience requires similar information to ours. We're going to compare the SGL of the U.S. and some other countries. For ease of comparison, only two other countries will be used, whose accounting rules are similar to those of the U.S.: Australia and Canada.

Code Structure

The U.S. SGL has 4-digit codes, and every account is a posting account. The Australian SGL uses 7-digit codes, and forms summary accounts by making the last digits zero (generally, the last three digits are zero). The Canadian SGL has a 5-digit code, but summary accounts have fewer digits, so total assets is 1, current assets is 11, and the first posting account is 1111. No one uses alpha characters.

Basic Account Classification

The table shows the basic classifications for SGL accounts, based on the first digit of the account number.

Comments

The Australian accounting system is interesting in that it assigns accounts in the SGL to report lines. The Financial Statements set of accounts includes such items as 9000046 Accumulated Results at Year End, and 9000002 Balance Sheet.

Both the Canadian and Australian charts include special accounts for cash reconciliation, but the Canadian accounts are used for interdepartmental cash transfers, while the statements-based Australian system includes activity which gives rise to a difference between the accrual and cash bases, such as 7110100

Revenues not Providing Cash and 7110200 Expenses not Requiring Cash. These accounts parallel those in other statements, for example, cash flow reconciliation account 7110008 records depreciation as does income statement account 2241000. A similar duplication exists in the accounts for cash flow, which parallel the accrual based accounts (e.g., 6211001 records cash received for taxes while 1100000 records all taxes accrued, whether or not they have been collected).

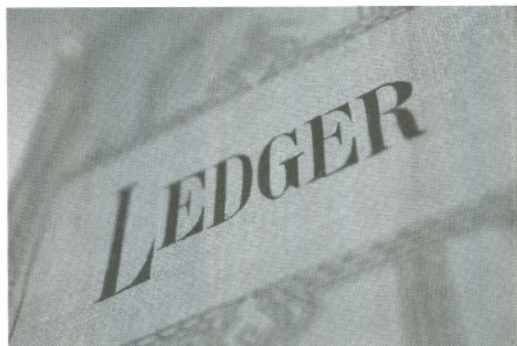

The biggest difference between the U.S. and the other charts of account is with the budgetary accounts. The Canadian chart has no budgetary accounts at all. The terms "appropriation" and "commitment" (which in the U.S. is called an obligation) do not occur anywhere. The Australian system, on the other hand, does have a Capital Budget Statement and a Schedule of Commitments, but there is no self-balancing set of budgetary accounts as we have in the U.S. SGL.

Conclusions

The idea of having statement lines in the chart of accounts, as an account that always equals the sum of a fixed set of other accounts, is intriguing, but also confusing. The U.S. SGL originally treated summary accounts this way, but never issued definitions for these accounts, and eliminated them in 1999. The lack of budgetary accounts in Australia and Canada may just be because the chart of accounts is used to produce the government-wide statements, and most budgetary information loses its meaning at such a high level. Even the FY2000 Financial Report of the U.S. Government does not include dollars appropriated or obligated, though every individual department is required to report these.
