

Nick Mortensen

Eide Bailly LLP

Nick is the Practice Lead over the Business Process Automation and Optimization team at Eide Bailly Technology Consulting. After receiving his Master's in Information Systems Management from Brigham Young University, he dove straight into business and technical consulting. With over a hundred projects under his belt as a project lead or technical architect, he has developed a deep passion for what he does. His team utilizes a suite of tools to optimize business process and automate menial and complex tasks, leaving humans to do what humans do best. By striving to understand your business first, this team of consultants will ensure your automation solutions deliver a quick return on investment while marching you towards your larger digital transformation goals.