

Jesse Simons is the Payments and Analytics Branch Chief at the National Science Foundation. His organization is responsible for NSF's portfolio of grant and commercial payment operations and baseline financial grant monitoring activities. He has 14 years of public and private sector experience leading cross-functional teams specializing in federal financial management and reporting, data and analytics, and financial process improvement. Prior to NSF, he was a Director at a Big 4 accounting firm specializing in supporting federal agencies in financial information and technology management engagements. He is a Certified Government Financial Manager (CGFM) and Project Management Professional (PMP).